Ref. n°: 26057926

The European Public Law Organization (EPLO), Office in Rome, presents its compliments to the Embassy of Georgia to the Italian Republic and has the honor to convey the new educational developments of the EPLO and of its International University, the European Law and Governance School (ELGS) in Rome. EPLO respectfully requests the Embassy's assistance in disseminating this information to institutions and prospective students who may be interested in our distinguished undergraduate, postgraduate, and research degree programs.

ELGS holds a unique position in the global academic landscape as the only higher education institution worldwide, offering a complete academic pathway — from undergraduate to doctoral level — exclusively dedicated to European Law and Governance. Established in 2016 under the auspices of EPLO and conceived by Professor Giuliano Amato, former Prime Minister of Italy, its programs were formally presented at the Quirinale Palace in the presence of H.E. President Sergio Mattarella.

The School serves a genuinely global mission: it equips international students to engage effectively with Europe — understanding its legal and institutional frameworks, navigating the Brussels context, and advancing their national interests within it. All programs are conducted entirely in English and supported by 300+ professors from 110 leading institutions, 37 partner universities, and alumni from over 20 countries across campuses in Athens, Rome, Cascais, Tbilisi, and Venice. Moreover, the EPLO degrees are acknowledged by the Italian State as equivalent to those granted by Italian universities (23A02383) (GU Serie Generale n.96 del 24-04-2023).
